The reel starts with a new invention which enables the wearer to walk and play on the water. Then we have a nature study of the badger, an animal which is always hunting a victim. A modern cake bakery shows the complete process of the manufacture of the delicacy, twenty tons of which are produced daily by one plant, all under the supervision of the New York Health Department. A swimming lesson for the children, posed by Commodore Brown, comes next. The reel closes with an animated sculpture cartoon, by Willie Hopkins, called "Presidential Problems."
